OBJECTIVES

1. Define ways to provide more enrichment to your activities.
- 2 .Identify ways to keep your participants engaged.
3. Discuss ways to keep positive behavior in a variety of ways.

Ice Breaker

Chat with your neighbors:

- What makes your program stand out?
 - How do you control behavior?
- How do you keep your children engaged?
 - Why do we do what we do?

What makes your program stand out

- Allowing choices and how this could be beneficial in your program.
- Finding staff specialties: Can you involve some staff talents to enrich your program? Example: A staff member who loves volleyball, being able to incorporate that into the program.
- Utilize current contracted instructors to bring them into the program to teach some of your enrichment specialties. Example: Tennis, Zumba, Yoga, Golf or Karate.

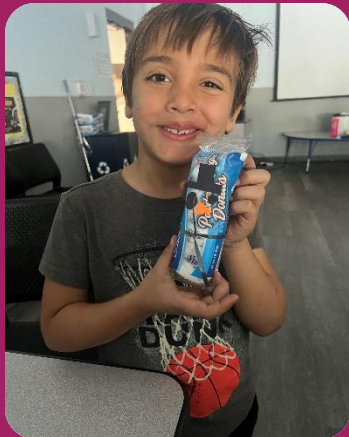

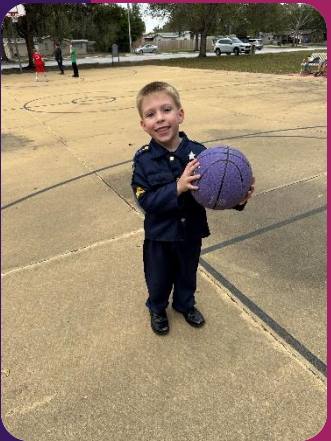

Staying Engaged!

- Allowing the children in your program to choose the activity they find interesting.
- Switching up choices each month to allow for variety.
- Hire energetic, enthusiastic instructors/staff that will encourage participation.
- If the staff are excited, the children will be excited!

Positive Behaviors

- Giving the children a choice allows them not to be forced to do an activity, which will increase positive behavior.
- Allowing them to change their choice, if they choose an activity that may not be a good fit, allow them to change to avoid behavior problems.
- Help build their self-esteem, learning to be a teammate, stepping out of their comfort zone.
- Allowing them to choose an activity they may not be able to do outside of the program.

Benefits

- Use it as a marketing tool, The children will talk about the enrichment activities your program is offering.
- Bringing in those instructors to introduce classes they may teach at your facility.

CHECK IN QR CODE

You will receive a QR code to place in your slide deck before you come to the Conference. This code should be placed within the last five slides of your deck; or last 15-20 minutes of your presentation.

Participants will scan the QR code with their phones to check in to the class. QR codes will be used to track attendance at your session.

Thank You!
